Eeeeeee Numb. 3853.

The Daily Courant.

Monday, March 1. 1714.

London, March 1.

The several Mails due from Holland Flanders and France are arrived.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated March 6.

Dusseldorp, March 2.

WE learn, that Part of the Imperial Troops which are on the Upper Rhine, are to come down into these Parts. The Count de Hompesch is on his Departure, to command ('tis said) the Body of Dutch Troops which are drawing together near Campen.

Brussels, March 1. 'Tis advised from Herstal, that the Dutch Troops are in Possession of the Town-House there, and that the Prussian Troops are possessed of the principal Avenues of the Streets: The Dispute about that Barony still subsists, the Imperial Chamber at Liege refusing to give Order for putting in Execution the Sentence given in favour of his Prussian Majesty about that Fief. It has been reported of late, that great Levies are making in Lorrain: 'Tis even said those Levies will amount to 20 or 25000 Men.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated March 6.

Liege, Feb. 27. The Dutch Troops are possessed of the Town-House of Herstal, as the Prussians are of the Avenues; 'tis said Reinforcements are coming on both Sides. Some Advices from Lorrain say, they are busy there without Intermission in making the Levies formerly mentioned; and that 'twas reported the Cavalry raising there is to be augmented to 12000 Men, according to the first Scheme laid.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Feb. 27.

The States of Holland have issued a Proclamation for the 7th of March to be observed as a Day of publick Prayer and Fasting. The Preamble is as follows.

THO' the Peace concluded between this State and France, as also between some of the High Allies and that Crown, gave us hopes that it might have been rendred general, and that by the Goodness of God the State might have obtained a desired and lasting Peace: Yet, we see to our great Regret and not without Uneasiness, not only that the State cannot hitherto attain to the Conclusion of Peace with Spain, but that the War still continues in the neighbouring Empire; and that the present Circumstances of things give a Prospect, in divers Respects, of very dangerous Consequences: That besides, the contagious Distemper having spread among the Cattle of this Country, &c.

From the Paris Letter, dated Feb. 27.

Paris, Feb. 27. They write from Strasbourg the 20th Instant, that M. de Contade arrived there from Versailles the 18th at Night, with new Instructions for the Marshal de Villars, who immediately dispatched an Express to Prince Eugene of Savoy at Stutgard. Philip Drummond Earl of Melfort, Captain in the Regiment of Spar, Son of the late Duke of Melfort, died the 10th of last Month at Fribourg, of the Wounds he received in the Siege of that Place. The Ministers have been consulting for some Days by what Means to lower the Dearness of Provisions, particularly of Bread-Corn. And upon Information that several Persons have laid up great Stores at a low Rate, at the time the Coin began to be reduced, and that they keep it in their Granaries, hoping thereby to make a Scarcity of Corn in the publick Markets, and then to Sell it dear and so make themselves amends for their Loss by the Diminution of the Coin; Commissaries are nominated to go about and compel those who have Quantities of Corn by them, to sell it at a moderate Price, in order to restore a Plenty; and the Publick began to feel the Effects of this Care last Market-Day, when the Price of Corn fell. The Taille on real Effects is begun to be levied in some Provinces according to the late Marshal de Vauban's Project of the Royal Tithe; and 'tis pretended the King will draw greater Sums from it than from the usual Taille, and that the People will be less aggrieved by it, because the collecting of this new Taille is much less lyable to Abuse than was the collecting of the other. The Day the Pope's Bull against Father Quesnel was Registred in Parliament, there were great Debates pro and con; and 70 of the Counsellours opposed it to the last; even the Terms used in registring it, are such as in effect render it null. The Cardinal de Noailles has published a Pastoral Instruction on Occasion of the said Bull, for opposing the Reception of which he was banished the Court; and it makes a ——— and infinite Numbers of it are sold

From the Brussels Gazette, dated March 6.

Stutgard, Feb. 26. The Express dispatched by the Marshal de Villars to his Highness Prince Eugene of Savoy here, is the Marquis de Contade whom that Marshal had sent to Versailles, whence he brought the most Christian King's Resolution for resuming the Conferences at Rastad, and concluding the Peace between the Emperour and Empire and France. His Highness being at Table with the said Marquis, drank a Glass to the good Success of the Conferences about to be renewed. His Highness sets out to Morrow for Rastad, whither the Marshal de Villars will repair the same Day from Strasbourg.

From the Paris Letter, dated March 6.

Paris, March 6. We have Advice from Strasbourg the 26th of last Month, that the Marshal de Villars set out that Day in the Evening for Rastat, where he was to be the 27th, Prince Eugene having sent him word that he would be there the same Day at 10 in the Morning. So now we no longer doubt the Peace is on the Point of being concluded: 'Tis talked even that the first Courier which the Marshal sends, will bring the Treaty signed. Some Advices from Holland, make the Number of Troops which the States General are raising, under Pretence of putting themselves on their Guard against the King of Prussia, to be 30000 Men. The Queen Dowager at St. Germains continues on the mending Hand.

Hague, March 6. 'We have Advices from the Upper Rhine, that M. de Contade, whom the Marshal de Villars dispatched to Versailles (before Prince Eugene and he last separated) with the last Determination of the Court of Vienna, was returned, with Resolutions so favourable that he immediately dispatched him to Prince Eugene to invite him back to Rastad. M. de Contade having delivered his Dispatches to the Prince, they had a long Conference upon them; at the Conclusion of which, the Prince sent away an Express to Vienna, and at the same Time gave Order for his own Return to Rastad. This has revived the Hopes of a speedy Peace between the Emperour and France; the Partisans of which last Court give out every where, that the most Christian King has agreed to almost all that the Emperour had ultimately demanded of him; and that by Consequence the Peace is infallible. In the mean while 'tis observed, that the Court of France have since redoubled their Application, for storing the Magazines all along their Frontiers towards Germany, and for remounting their Horse, sparing nothing to get them compleated by the Beginning of April. And on the other Hand, Prince Eugene has earnestly exhorted the Diet of the Empire and the four associated Circles, not to depend upon the Appearances of Peace, but to continue to take vigorous Measures for opening the Campaign assoon as the French, in case the Peace do not intervene. The 23d of last Month the Plenipotentiaries of Great-Britain and of Spain, exchanged the Ratifications of their Treaty of Peace and Commerce, which were afterwards sent by Expresses to their respective Courts. The Earl of Strafford on his Arrival here signified, that he has full and ample Power, not only to adjust the Differences between Great-Britain and this State in what relates to the Spanish Netherlands, but likewise to enter with their High Mightynesses into effectual Measures for procuring Peace to the Empire and to the North: On the 23d of February he had his first Audience of the States General, in which (after having recommended to them the using Means joyntly with Britain for procuring the Abolition of the 4th Article of the Treaty of Ryswick, in favour of the Protestant Princes of Germany) he acquainted them with the Resolutions of his Court to hasten the intire Demolition of Dunkirk towards the Sea as well as towards the Land, and the Intentions of his said Court to withdraw their Troops from Flanders, assoon as the States will evacuate Ostend and put it into the Possession of Flemmish Forces, and enter into their Measures in favour of the Peace of the Empire and of the North, as also in favour of the King of Sicily, so as to secure to him not only the Possession of Sicily, but of all that was stipulated for him from the Emperour during the War. His Excellency has since explained himself more particularly in a Memorial, as well as in private Conferences,
